Community-Based Public Health Caucus presents:

Building Bridges from CBPR to Collaborative Community Policymaking — LI #1007

Saturday, November 6, 2010; 1:30 PM – 5:00 PM

APHA Annual Meeting, Denver, CO

This learning institute will explore how collaborative community-driven policy design can provide an empowering bridge between research and action. It will also help participants understand how to navigate that bridge by discussing the continuum of community-engaged research and policy advocacy, and the need to structure partnerships in accord with specific kinds of community action/research objectives, with close attention to the equitable structuring of power relationships.

To attend the APHA-LI courses, a separate registration fee of $200 is required. The APHA 2010 Annual Meeting registration opens June 1. Registration information may be accessed on this date at www.apha.org/meetings/registration. Contact Shawn Kimmel at skimmel@umich.edu with any questions.

Presenters:

Cassandra Ritas, MPP, Peoples Policy Institute
Collaborative policy design for community-based health partnerships.

Kent Key, BBA, Flint Odyssey House Health Awareness Center
How current institutional practices/policies may threaten the existence of authentic CBPR partnerships, policy and products: A community perspective

Shawn D. Kimmel, PhD, Center for Community-driven Policymaking
Key challenges to structuring effective frameworks for community-driven policy research