NEWS FROM CCPH!

Input Sought on Development of Community Research Partners Website! CCPH is collaborating with Vanderbilt University and other partners on a new website being developed to help support community-engaged research. We need your input on the website’s design to ensure that it’s a useful tool and a frequently tapped resource! We will be holding telephone focus groups with community partners from across the country, and conducting an online survey that anyone interested or involved in community-engaged research may complete. Details will be posted shortly on the CBPR listserv at <http://bit.ly/bGKkaix>. For more information, write us at programs@ccph.info

There's More to Dissemination than Publishing in Journals! CES4Health is a free online mechanism for peer-reviewed publication and dissemination of diverse products of community-engaged scholarship in forms other than journal articles. In just two years, CES4Health has peer reviewed and published 34 products, including videos, policy reports, training curricula, digital stories and a cookbook! Community and academic experts in the product's content area and format review each product. Authors retain copyright of their work. Visit <http://CES4Health.info> today to learn more, submit products and apply to be a reviewer! Follow the latest CES4Health news at <http://twitter.com/CES4Health>

New York City Community Partner Forum Set for March 8! On the heels of the successful National Community Partner Forum (<http://bit.ly/uCu3r5>), this forum will convene New York City community groups for a day-long exploration of building health research capacity in communities. We ask NYC area Clinical and Translational Science Awardees (CTSAs) and other academic research institutions to share this information with their community partners and encourage them to attend! For more information, contact Alma Idehen at alma.idehen@einstein.yu.edu

CCPH co-sponsored Service-Learning Workshop, June 5-7 in Tucson! Gain knowledge and skills for addressing health disparities through service learning during this unique professional development opportunity! Workshop leaders include University of Arizona public health faculty, staff & community partners, & CCPH senior consultant and long-time service-learning mentor Suzanne Cashman. A field experience in tribal health, border health or rural health is included. CCPH members receive a substantial registration fee discount. For details, email mgunoz@email.arizona.edu
