 Why Do Funders Invest in Community-Campus Partnerships? How Do They Think About Impact Sustainability, & Their Roles as Partners? Northwest Health Foundation President Thomas Aschenbrenner and Portland State University Professor of Public Health Sherril Gelmon will address these questions and more in their lively plenary presentation on May 12th!

 Camara Jones Confirmed as CCPH Conference Keynote Speaker! As Research Director on Social Determinants of Health and Equity at CDC, Camara's work focuses on the impact of racism on health. Her closing keynote presentation on May 15th will invite participants to imagine the transformative potential of their partnership work and propel them to tackle institutional racism and other root causes of inequality.

NEWS FROM CCPH

 CCPH Board Establishes Bobby Gottlieb Scholarship Fund! Recognizing Bobby's exemplary leadership as 2008-2009 board chair, and her commitment to CCPH as an inclusive organization, the board established this fund to provide scholarships for those otherwise unable to participate in CCPH events and programs. Learn more about the Scholarship Fund and how you can contribute to it at: http://depts.washington.edu/ccph/gottlieb_fund.html

Bobby is a primary care internist at Brookside Community Health Center in Jamaica Plain, MA, where she has worked since 1981. In addition to her patient care responsibilities, she develops clinical and public health programs and coordinates medical student and resident teaching activities, coordinates research activities and serves as a liaison to academically based researchers and research projects. A faculty member at Harvard, she teaches service-learning courses and mentors medical and public health students. Read an interview with Bobby at <http://depts.washington.edu/ccph/featuredmember.html>

 Videos on CBPR with Indigenous People! In these videos developed by Fay Fletcher and colleagues and published through CES4Health.info, role models and leaders in Indigenous health research in Canada and the United States share their stories of work with First Nations and American Indian colleagues in community based participatory research (CBPR). Acknowledging the impact of history and resiliency while capturing the passion of emerging leaders in Indigenous health research, the videos provide a starting point for discussion on the roles and responsibilities of community and university partners in CBPR. CES4Health.info is a new mechanism for peer-reviewed publication and dissemination of diverse products of community-engaged scholarship that come in forms other than journal articles. To access these videos and other products published through CES4Health.info, submit a product, or apply to become a peer reviewer, visit www.CES4Health.info

 CCPH Shares Views on CBPR Ethics at Federal Advisory Council Meeting! At its meeting in October 2009, the Secretary's Advisory Council on Human Research Protections included an invited panel on community-based participatory research ethics. CCPH executive director Sarena Seifer and CCPH member Sarah Flicker were among the panellists. Access the meeting agenda, powerpoints and handouts at http://www.hhs.gov/ohrp/sachrp/mtgings/mtg10-09/minutes.html#_Toc251057285.
