HEALTH FUNDING

May was Funding for Health Month at the Foundation Center, which released three new reports on regional funding trends and a resource list for trends in healthcare philanthropy. The reports offer snapshots of health grantmaking in California, Georgia and Ohio and provide statistical charts, directories of significant health funders in each region and more. Visitors to the center's website will also find links to health-related resources and information about events and courses on health funding at its libraries around the country. Shipping is free during May for Grants for Mental Health, Addictions and Crisis Services and Grants for the Physically and Mentally Disabled when ordered online. Find out more:

2006 GATES AWARD FOR GLOBAL HEALTH

The Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation announced that the Carter Center will receive the 2006 Gates Award for Global Health. The center is being recognized for its pioneering work in the battle against neglected diseases, such as Guinea worm, river blindness, trachoma, schistosomiasis and lymphatic filariasis. The $1 million prize - the world's largest international health prize - honors extraordinary efforts to improve health in developing countries. The Gates foundation presented the award at the Global Health Council's 33rd Annual International Conference on Global Health on June 1, 2006, in Washington, DC. Read more:

NOT IN MAMA'S KITCHEN

What if you could reduce death and diseases from asthma, sudden infant death syndrome, breast cancer and a number of respiratory diseases within your community? What if you could accomplish this through positive community education and faith based outreach? Think it's beyond your reach? Think again!!! Caffee, Caffee and Associates, Public Health Foundation, Inc. (CCA), a non-profit agency has assisted communities across the U.S. in designing and implementing successful and powerful outreach activities shown to effect change, garner community cohesiveness and motivate families. Where does it start? Why "Not In Mama's Kitchen", of course!

NIMK, a program developed by Brenda Bell Caffee, Executive Director of Caffee, Caffee and Associates Public Health Foundation, Inc., (CCA) is dedicated to improving the health of families in diverse communities, while enhancing capacity building among community and grassroots organizations. One of the great focal points of NIMK is in the

Partnership Matters Newsletter

Submission Guidelines

We welcome announcements, comments and questions from you! Please forward them to the PM Editor at ccphpm@u.washington.edu.

Submission Guidelines:

- Please limit announcements and questions to not more than 100 words. As for articles and editorials, not more than 200 words;
- Provide the names of all authors, their current institutional affiliations and/or photos;
- Explain all abbreviations and unusual terms when first used.

education and prevention of environmental tobacco smoke (ETS) exposure. ETS exposure in the home, which is completely preventable, is an important predictor of increased morbidity among children (Office of Smoking and Health). Researchers estimate that second-hand smoke is responsible for between 40-60% of cases of asthma, bronchitis, and wheezing among young children (Gergen, 1). According to the Pierce report, African Americans are more likely than other racial groups to smoke in the home. Recent studies indicate that approximately only 75.3% of African American children live in smoke free homes as compared to over 90% for Hispanics and Asians.

The African American Tobacco Education Network of California under the direction of Brenda Bell Caffee evaluated this disturbing information and created a campaign to address the need to educate underserved communities regarding ETS. Because census data indicates that many African American households are female headed, we decided to direct our message to mothers, grandmothers, aunts, and sisters. The first NIMK activity was held on Mothers Day, 1999. We created a collaborative effort with the churches, schools, CBO's, and the community itself to garner signed commitments from women to not allow smoking in their house or car. We received over 3,000 pledges. Survey data revealed that of respondents, 96% stated that they would continue to maintain a smoke free home and car beyond the campaign.

Since this first activity, the highly acclaimed NIMK has been utilized across the nation as a tool of inspiration to motivate families to a point of contemplation through their cultural and spiritual connections. NIMK has been used as an empowerment tool to educate diverse and at risk communities through planned outreach activities. These activities encourage families to make a commitment to provide clean environments, promote healthier lifestyles and declare their homes and cars to be smoke free. The dichotomy leading to the longevity of NIMK is the fact that this highly successful project has not only been embraced as a motivational household phenomenon, but has become a capacity building instrument that coalesces grass root organizations and established health coalitions in order to conduct skillful and rewarding events. The program has reached over 200,000 homes with its educational message and has garnered over 75,000 pledges from households committed to remove unnecessary airborne contaminants that increase children's susceptibility to respiratory diseases.

Because NIMK activities can be tailored around other important public health or disparity issues such as obesity, inactivity, childhood education, and youth risk behaviors. CCA can assist you in developing and conducting public education tailored to the families you serve. For more information, we contact:

MESSAGE FROM OUR EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Sarena Seifer

Angela Glover Blackwell was the ideal keynote speaker to close CCPH's 9th conference earlier this month. As CEO of PolicyLink, Angela works at the intersection of community building, policy change and social justice. In line with the conference theme of "Walking the Talk: Achieving the Promise of Authentic Partnerships," she challenged us all to step up our commitment to ensuring that "all people can participate, prosper and thrive through social and economic equity." She emphasized the important contribution that place makes to equal opportunity. "Where you live," she said, "has always been a proxy for opportunity. It determines whether you will have resources like quality affordable housing, strong public schools, convenient and comprehensive transportation options, living-wage jobs, and even access to supermarkets offering fresh, healthy foods or parks and public spaces for recreation and physical activity."

Angela offered examples of successful community building efforts that PolicyLink has been involved in, including the story of a low-income neighborhood in southeast San Diego that did not have local access to healthy food and spent more than $60 million a year shopping outside their own neighborhood, which did not have a supermarket. Working with the Jacobs Family Foundation and residents of the neighborhood, community priorities were identified. What emerged was a community vision for creating a town center for a supermarket and other commercial entities. Local residents were involved in every aspect of decision making, from design and layout to leasing. Seven years and $65 million later, the now fully leased Market Creek Plaza has become more than a center of activity in the neighborhood and has catalyzed further local development. For example, musical and other performances take place in a 500-seat amphitheater. Where The World Meets, a gift shop, serves as a forum where local artists and craftsmen sell their wares on consignment. Living up to the project's promise of community and economic development, 69 percent of Market Creek's construction contracts went to local minority-owned enterprises, and 90 percent of Food 4 Less employees were hired from the surrounding community. In all, 1,700 new jobs have been created in an area where nearly 40 percent of residents live below the poverty line and unemployment is at about 13 percent, more than double the overall jobless rate in San Diego.

*Angela Glover Blackwell
CCPH 9th Conference Keynote Speaker*

Angela emphasized the need to cultivate and support community leaders to “become agents of change on behalf of their communities.” She highlighted the importance of “boundary spanning” leaders who could work effectively across diverse cultures in communities, organizations and institutions. She encouraged participants to learn more by reading a recent report from the Asian Pacific American Legal Center.

She closed the conference with a hopeful note that communities across the country – indeed the world – are advancing social and economic equity. She applauded CCPH members for bringing together the wisdom and experience of communities with that in academe to advance a social justice agenda in which “all may participate, prosper and thrive.”

Please be sure to mark your calendars now for next year’s CCPH conference, April 11-14, 2007 in Toronto Ontario Canada. The call for proposals will be out this summer and posted on our homepage at www.ccphtoronto.org.

Next year’s conference is notable for a number of reasons:

- *It will celebrate Community-Campus Partnerships for Health’s 10th anniversary, allowing us to reflect on the history and evolution of the organization and to engage stakeholders in determining our future directions.
- *It will be our first conference held in Canada, presenting unprecedented opportunities to learn from Canadian experiences with community-campus partnerships and the social determinants of health, and to explore synergies across North America and beyond.
- *It is taking place in one of the most diverse cities in the world, presenting unparalleled opportunities to explore critical issues of race, ethnicity, socioeconomic status and culture.
- *It represents an important product of our partnership with the Wellesley Institute, the Toronto-based organization that advances the social determinants of health through rigorous community-based research, reciprocal capacity building, and the informing of public policy (if you haven’t yet subscribed to our jointly sponsored Community-Based Participatory Research listserv, do so today at <http://mailman1.u.washington.edu/mailman/listinfo/cbpr>)

CCPH 9th CONFERENCE VIEWER'S CHOICE BEST POSTER AWARDS

Posters are an important component to CCPH conference. They are designed to visually display information on issues and topics related to the conference theme, and may present research or evaluation findings and their implications for practice, policy or further study. Posters were selected for display through a competitive peer-reviewed call for proposals process. At this year's conference, which took place May 31-June 3 in Minneapolis, there were over 75 posters presented. During the evening poster session and exhibitor reception on June 3, conference participants have the opportunity to cast their vote for the Viewer's Choice Best Poster Award. We are pleased to announce the winning posters:

First Place – Outside the Box: How the Moms Project Got HIV Providers Talking (and Singing!) ~ Angela Williams, Susan Davies and Trudi Horton, University of Alabama at Birmingham School of Public Health; Cynthia Rogers, The Family Clinic, Children's Midtown Center; Katherine Stewart, University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences

Second Place – The Experience of Hmong Women Living with Diabetes ~ Avonne A. Yang and Eslee Vang, College of St. Catherine

Third Place – A Partnership for Safety: Learning about IPV and Improving Access to Care ~ Suzanne Leonard Harrison and Jose Rodriguez, Florida State University College of Medicine

Honorable Mention – The Holistic Health Planning Partnership for Women Offenders: How a Community Academic Partnership Can Become a Catalyst for Change ~ Connie Shaver and Linda Pate-Hall, Horizons, Inc.; Ann Maguire, Department of Internal Medicine, Medical College of Wisconsin

Honorable Mention – Fostering Community and Public Health Collaborations to Improve Health ~ Audrey Stevenson and Iliana MacDonald; Salt Lake Valley Health Department

Honorable Mention – Social Justice and Responsiveness: Campus-Community Partnerships in Medical Education ~ Tangerine A. Holt, Centre for Medical and Health Sciences Education, Monash University, Australia

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Professionals Sought to Evaluate Applications for Federal Grants

On a continuous basis, the three centers of the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) are seeking professionals to evaluate applications for Federal grants. SAMHSA reviewers must have related program experience and education, be able to analyze grant applications effectively against specific criteria, be able to express their evaluation clearly in writing, and be interested in contributing to the advancement of knowledge. For more information, visit

<http://www.samhsa.gov/Grants/emailform/call4review.asp>

Alexis Institute for Civil Society and Philanthropy

The Foundation Center launched the Alexis Institute for Civil Society and Philanthropy to focus on the rapidly evolving world of philanthropy and civil society in the United States and abroad. Lester M. Salamon, professor and director of the Center for Civil Society Studies at Johns Hopkins University, is founding director. Foundation Center President Sara L. Engelhardt said the institute, named after Alexis de Tocqueville, is key to transforming the Foundation Center from "the preeminent information resource on U.S. foundations and their grantmaking into a knowledge center on the broader field of philanthropy and civil society worldwide." ## PUBLICATIONS

CCPH Members receive discounts on publications by Jossey-Bass as well as all CCPH publications

School Health Services and Programs

School Health Services and Programs offers an introduction to the components of successful school health programs. It contains a comprehensive review article by Julia Graham Lear, reprints of important and influential articles and reports in the field and of a book chapter summarizing the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation's work to improve school health, and summaries of relevant Robert Wood Johnson Foundation grant results reports. The book emphasizes the relationship between school health and community health, and the importance of evidence-based policy in developing strategies to improve children's health. This collection, developed by one of the foremost authorities in school health, reviews basic concepts in school health, provides a historical perspective and analysis, reviews the unique role of school nurses, and examines the significance of school health services in vulnerable populations.

Conversando Con Su Médico

A Free Publication Helps Older Hispanics Improve Doctor/Patient Communication

How well patients and doctors talk to each other is one of the most important parts of getting good health care. As we get older, it becomes even more important to talk often and comfortably with the doctor. Unfortunately, talking to the doctor isn't always easy. It takes time and effort. A new publication from the National Institute on Aging (NIA) can help older adults learn to communicate more effectively with their doctors. To order a free copy of "Conversando con su médico", please call the NIA Information Center toll free at 1-800-222-2225 Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Information specialists are available to respond to inquiries in both English and Spanish. You also may order this and other Spanish-language materials on the NIA Web site at www.nia.nih.gov.

New Paper Added to the COMM-ORG 2006 Paper Series

COMM-ORG 2006 paper series has added Four Narratives of Anti-Poverty Community Mobilization: Housing Works, FIERCE, Human Rights Watch and the More Gardens Coalition by Benjamin Shepard. This is a collection of essays covering housing, community gardens, free spaces, and social justice issues in New York City. As such it is an interesting look at how the issues interweave and intersect in one place, with an emphasis on the words of the participants themselves. For more information, visit <http://comm-org.wisc.edu/papers.htm>

Trust Counts Now

Trust Counts Now, a report released May 2 at the American Hospital Association Annual Membership Meeting, includes seven recommendations to help hospitals bolster the public's trust in them. These include:

- Adopt a public health model to complement the finance and business model
- Partner with competing hospitals and local public and private leaders to tackle social problems that threaten the community's health; and
- Share publicly accessible and usable information on quality, performance and patient safety

The study author is John King, a former CEO of Legacy Health System in Portland, Oregon and former AHA Board Chair. Download the report from:
