Please read and sign the Code of Conduct and Terms of Participation below.

Code of Conduct for CHID International Programs

The Comparative History of Ideas program expects our international programs to be uniquely educational and positively transformative experiences for all participants. Participants have responsibilities to each other, as a community of learning, and to their hosts, as representatives of the University of Washington, to engage in appropriate conduct. As such, the Comparative History of Ideas program maintains this code of conduct:

- All participants are expected to be engaged in all academic aspects of the program, including (but not limited to) punctual attendance to classes, completion of assignments, and participation in class discussions.
- All participants are expected to take part in required group activities, including (but not limited to) group meetings, projects, field trips and service learning engagements.
- Threatening or demeaning conduct is prohibited.
- All participants are expected to respect the property and privacy of fellow participants.
- Participants are expected to abide by the University of Washington's policy prohibiting sexual harassment.
- Conduct which negatively impacts another participant's engagement or participation in the program is prohibited.
- All participants are expected to obey the laws of the host country, and the rules of host institutions (dormitories, classrooms, workplaces etc.).
- Conduct which threatens the viability of future Comparative History of Ideas programs in the host country is prohibited.
- Participants are expected to comply with the University of Washington Student Conduct Code (available online at <http://www.washington.edu/students/handbook/conduct.html>).

Participants who fail to observe this code of conduct may be dismissed from the program.

Terms of Participation

If you are accepted to this program, you will be notified by e-mail, and given about one week to confirm participation, by signing a payment contract. When you confirm, a $350 deposit, which counts toward the total program fee, will be assessed to your student account. This $350 deposit is non-refundable. In addition to the program fee, you are responsible for some other expenses, including, but not limited to the IPE fee, round-trip airfare, entertainment, meals, health insurance, and incidentals.

Withdrawal: Once you have confirmed participation, you cannot be removed from the program roster unless you submit a withdrawal form to the CHID office and the IPE office. Refer to your payment contract for your program's refund policy.

I have read and understood the Code of Conduct and the Terms of Participation, and I accept these terms.
