

Environmental Studies Program Director and Director of Sustainability
Hamline University

Hamline University is seeking applications from individuals with a Ph.D. in an appropriate field to fill a tenured/tenure-track faculty position as Director of our undergraduate program in Environmental Studies. This individual will also serve as Director of Sustainability.

Responsibilities of the Sustainability Director will be to direct a funded, grant-supported project to enhance and expand our undergraduate sustainability curriculum and co-curricular opportunities for undergraduate students. This will include developing faculty training opportunities, funding curriculum development projects and developing and funding opportunities for student participation in sustainability activities. Teaching release and summer salary for the first two years will be provided for the Sustainability Director. Responsibilities of the Director of Environmental Studies will include administration of the undergraduate major in Environmental Studies, leading a revision of the undergraduate major, teaching courses that contribute to the major, maintaining a research program that allows undergraduate student participation, and academic advisement of students.

For more information or to apply go to <https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/4694>.

Inquiries about the position may be directed to Professor Michael Farris, search committee chair, at mfarris@hamline.edu. Application Review will begin on Oct. 20, 2014, and continue until the position is filled. Hamline University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and educator and is especially interested in candidates who will contribute to a campus climate that supports equality and diversity.