

Position – Volunteer Wildlife Guides Required, SeaMôr Wildlife Tours

Volunteer Position offered to a marine biology enthusiast with a passenger boat trip company to assist with wildlife guiding activities.

SeaMôr Wildlife Tours is looking for enthusiastic and hardworking boat crew to fill a position offered during the period of April to June 2015. The position requires working on the wildlife watching boat as crew and a wildlife guide and also assisting with sales and marketing of the trips. This is a fantastic opportunity to learn some great skills such as boat handling, general seamanship, enhancing your public speaking skills, and hopefully help inspire the next generation of marine biologists.

The trips run from the beautiful towns of New Quay and Abaereron in Cardigan Bay, which is home to the largest population of bottlenose dolphins in the UK. Harbour porpoises, grey seals and a variety of sea birds are also amongst the many animals that can be viewed on the trips.

WHAT SKILLS AND EXPERIENCE YOU WILL GAIN:

- Public speaking and guiding experience
- Crewing on a commercial passenger boat
- Boat handling and general seamanship
- Customer service and team work

ESSENTIAL REQUIREMENTS:

- Fluent spoken English
- Interest in marine wildlife and boating
- Flexibility and the ability to work outdoors
- Good communication skills
- Good customer service skills
- Experience of working in a small team

DESIRABLE:

- Marine biology (or similar) qualification
- RYA powerboat license
- Interest in marketing
- Website editing and design

Other info:

This is an unpaid post, however, there will be an element of paid work available, and free accommodation is provided.

How to apply:
