

Acknowledgements

Seattle, December 20, 2001

I wish to express my gratitude to a number of people who became involved with this thesis, one way or another. My thesis advisor, Mark D Gross, whose suggestions led me throughout this thesis, has always been willing to answer my questions. Ellen Do has been kind enough to serve as a member of my advisory committee. In addition, grateful thanks to both of them for their encouragement of students wishing to pursue research within the field of Architecture.

This thesis could not have been accomplished without Sitt Therakomen, my husband who is always with me no matter how dubious my decision were. He always gives me warm encouragement and love in every situation. I believe I owe deepest thanks to all people in my entire family who have supported me since I was born.

“...If you want to change the world, change yourself...”

– Dad.