Idaho Crowd Hurts Eggs At Taylor

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho, Sept. 1.--(AP) Sen. Glen Taylor reported tonight he has been peppered with eggs and eggs in making a campaign appearance in his home state.

The Progressive Party vice president was on his way to Idaho Falls, the last of his 10-day tour in Idaho, when he was met by a crowd of about 1,000 people, mostly farmhands.

Disenchantment with the Progressive Party, Taylor said, was the main reason for the naming of eggs.

Wreckage of an aircraft missing seven days with two persons aboard was believed sighted late yesterday afternoon.

In a nearby field, several persons claimed to have seen the wreckage.

Mitchum Fears For His Career

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1.--(N.F.S) A penitent Robert Mitchum, fearful his arrest for selling marijuana would wash up his screen career as well as his marriage, remained in seclusion tonight following his arrest.

The $500,000-a-week star, who spent the night behind bars after narcotic agents raided the hotel where he was staying, was released on $1,000 bail.

Mitchum said bitterly:
"Well, I guess this washes me out, my dear. People are not going to go to the movies to see a man who has sold marijuana.

Got Only Glimpses Of Wreckage

Gebhardt said the location of the wreckage prevented him from getting more than a glimpse of it.

Puget Sound longshoremen walked off their jobs at 12:01 a.m. today, setting the stage for beginning of a strike at 10:30 this morning.

The work stoppage will result from the collapse of negotiations in San Francisco be between the Waterfront Employ ers Association and the Congress of Industrial Organizations International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union.

The walkout was simulta
aneous in every West Coast city where the C. I. O. union has jurisdiction over longshoremen.

Three Sound Ports
Not Affected

The walkout will affect 28
ships in the Seattle harbor and other vessels in eight Washing to ports. Besides Seattle, the ports are Everett, Bellingham, Aberdeen, Olympia, Raymond, Port Gamble and Port Townsend.

Tacoma, Tacoma and Port An gas, ports where an American Federation of Labor longshoremen is unionized, are not affected by the walkout.

The walkout came after last min utes discussions in San Francisco ended at 10:56 p.m. Harry Briggs, president of the longshoremen's unions, said wages were the main point at issue.

manded 15 cents an hour increase for straight time and 27 cents overtime. The employees have offered 10 and 15.

Griffiths predicted the tie-up would last at least two months, the Associated Press reported.

The longshore union is one of six involved in a potential tie-up. All unions have said that no contract will be signed until satisfactory agreements have been reached by all.

Three Independent Seattle waterfront firms, a member of the Seattle Longshoremen's Union, and the Regional Transportation Company agreed to a union contract, which expired last week.

Judge Who Issued Injunction Is Here

Federal Judge George Harris of San Francisco, who issued the 80-day maritime strike injunction June 16, said last night in Seattle that an injunction is an order of the court to stay whatever action necessary in right of any motion by the U.S. attorney general concerning the case.

The judge is attending the judiciary conference here.

Judge Harris said 'he was advised that Gus Rosenblatt, a special assistant to the attorney general, is an ex-officio Seattle from San Francisco to confer with him today.' The court may be requested by the attorney general to dynamite the injunction, which expires at 10:30 a.m. today.

Before the court department, the National Labor Relations Board must certify a labor contract among members on the last contract offered by employers, the Associated Press reported from Washington.

The board yesterday said it could not complete its poll of 11,000 West Coast seafarers before October 1.

West Coast longshoremen have boycotted the election.
