Would you like to learn more about your attitudes about money?

Would you like to explore feelings about giving, receiving, taking and asking for money?

Would you like to network with others interested in these questions?

Would you like to take a few risks and have a lot of fun?

The Money Game is a simulation game developed over 15 years ago to help people in all financial situations to understand the feelings and beliefs we have about money in our lives and in society. Each person brings a certain amount of money that may lessen or grow depending on how the game goes, so bring an amount you don't mind losing but which is enough to feel like you are taking a bit of a risk. The game consists of three sets exploring giving, receiving, and asking for money and lasts for about two hours.

What to bring:

- Real money, preferably in small bills: The amount is up to you; it has been played with from $1 on up to $200.
- A friend with whom you can discuss the game once you leave.
- A journal and pen or pencil.
- A potluck dish to share.

The game works best with over 20 people so bring your friends and family. If you are interested, call Class Action, 413-585-9709, or email jladd@igc.org.
