Heart Murmurs: What Patients Teach Their Doctors breaks tradition with a collection of stories by Sharon Dobie MD and 35 other physicians. Grouped thematically, the stories take all readers from the specific to universal messages, asking each of us to see how we are changed within all relationships, doctor-patient or otherwise.

“Heart Murmurs highlights a crucial, but often ignored, facet of the complex crystal that is the doctor-patient relationship—how that relationship can lead the physician down paths of courage, joy, mystery, and humility. In these stories, moving, funny, insightful, and well-observed, physicians reflect on the gifts their patients have given them. Not all of the accounts achieve resolution, which is as it should be, but in each account the physician is cognizant of having acquired an invaluable lesson as a result of the encounter.”

—Johanna Shapiro, PhD, University of California, Irvine

“These deeply engaging stories affirm our shared humanity. We recognize in them many of our own experiences, reflected through the lens of our better selves. Sharon Dobie has captured the moral and magical essence of the doctor-patient relationship. Anyone spending a quiet meditative hour with this book will find something to surprise, entertain and heal, especially at the end of a wounding day.”

—Caroline Wellbery, MD, Georgetown University
Sharon Dobie MD, MCP is a Family Medicine physician at the University of Washington. She practices full spectrum Family Medicine, teaches and mentors residents and students, and has done health services research in addition to her work on relationship centered care. Representing many specialties, the other thirty-five physician authors worked with Dr. Dobie and a colleague exploring lessons learned from their patients.

978-0-9889865-5-8
November 2014
240 pages  |  $29.95 pbk

Available for purchase at:
www.UCMedicalHumanitiesPress.com

New from University of California Medical Humanities Press