

My Transition Story

May 2005

My name is Megan and my disability is Down syndrome. I am 20 years old.

From my freshmen year at North Central High School I was scared at first and I thought I wouldn't make any friends, but I learned if I smiled more I can make friends. My teachers were very nice too. I use to sit by myself at lunch, but then I decided to sit with my friends instead.

My friends went to a different school and sometimes they'll skip class. SO I decided to do it too, but I was wrong so I decided to set a better example on myself and get good grades. Now I am in college and I have a lot of friends that are good examples for me.

In my future, I want to become a CAN, (Certified Nursing Assistant). I have applied for vocational training at the Skills Center in our school district. I am working for experience at a senior citizen home in the recreational department. Eventually, I want to have a wonderful job working with elderly people.
