- Dr. Frederick Rivara, UW Department of Pediatrics
- Dr. Judy Wasserheit, UW Department of Global Health

Injury is a leading cause of death for children across the globe. The World Report on Child Injury Prevention is the result of a three-year collaboration involving pediatric injury experts. It proposes ways to prevent injuries caused by burns, drowning, road traffic crashes, falls and poisoning, particularly in low and middle income countries.

*The event will complement an international effort to create safer communities for children and is made possible with the generous support of
