and Vander replied that "in view of the case recently filed by the oil mill, it would be better not to do him now."

There is no chance that any definite legislation on the stockyards will be introduced in the house or senate in the near future. The hearings have laid the foundation for a bill which work by the Republicans in the next session is called.

Free Newspapers Demanded
The progressive

the chief of these is the repeal of the Espionage Act and the that and other wartime laws which are being used to crush the small but independent press. The speech in the senate,

Red-Red Senators
Senator Myers of Montana, Senator King of Utah and a few other
of the radical
soured on democracy, have begun to speak in a two American journalists, returned from Soviet Russia, told what they had seen and said to that con-ting. The chairman of this meet-

Following whole a lying report in a local morning paper, the fact that the speakers advocated the overthrow of the government in this country, a handful of standards in the senate next day adopted a resolution by which the committee on partment of justice for a report on this particular meeting.

When interviewed, Judson King did not advocate any thing—just trying to find out the reasons, which couldn't get from the papers.

senate logic, we are red Bolshe-vists, we are not alarmed, just amused."

Intervention Upheld
The only action taken at the meeting was the adoption of a motion endorsing the resolution by Senator Johnson of California, calling for the return of American troops from Russia and Siberia.
The senate voted down the resolution by a majority of 12 to 1.
all the Republicans except Nelson

W. Mason, Western Democrats of New Mexico, John W. Weeks,

EDNA GOODRICH
WANTS ESTATE
OF NAT GOODWIN
NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Edna Goodrich, fourth wife of the late Nat Goodwin, intends to make a will giving the estate valued at $300,000. It was announced here today that Goodrich had secured all possessions of the comedian made in 1912.

The estate was previously estimated at $200,000. The new property is in California. The late Nat Goodwin's ownership of the will giving the right to

RECEPTION TO WILSON IN ITALY

President Wilson in Milan. The photograph which were reproduced today shows the president ac-claimed by Milan.

President Wilson has become the object of tumultuous demonstrations in all the cities visited by him in Europe, but the expressions of joyful welcome in Italy have exceeded all the others, according to the testimony of many eye-witnesses. The photograph which were reproduced today shows the president ac-claimed by Milan.

By Burling, declared that it was far better for the nation that a possible few reasonable remarks be printed, when the men responsible could be brought to book for the act, than that any single official should have power to dictate the editorial policy which newspapers must follow.

Senator McCumber of North Dakota argued that it was the "gross abuse of arbitrary power" which has been the cause of the of arbitrary power," cried Borah,
"and that the members of the arbitrary power for, if you do not take care to prevent the to exercise it arbitrarily." Patiently he continued to the printing of which smaller and less influential papers have been printed. Men are in the penitentiary today for sentences ranging from 10 to 15 years, for saying things that have been heard said in this chamber over and over again."

Nelson Wants Anarchy
Senator Nelson denounced
"bolshavist poison," and declared that the government must prevent the mission of the crisis of public reasonable statements. He argued that the "bolshavist" ism," was so dangerous and evils of the penal statistics, that his advocate should be "outside the pale of law," and not entitled to the process of trial.

Borah held up the statement of the Minnesota senator to the light, saying that it was a
"vocabulary of anarchy, or the rule of force in place of the rule of law."

Red-Red Senators
Senator Myers of Montana, Senator King of Utah and a few other
of the radical
soured on democracy, have begun

NOT ALLOWED TO KNOW!

"The Paris correspondent of the London Mail says he understands that the new armistice conditions provide for the destruction of the fortifications of Heligoland and the Kiel Canal."

"So runs the dispatch. "He understands." Is no one to know? Are the Germans to be told the terms of the armistice and it is to be kept secret from the peoples of the Allies? Are the Germans to protest and protest, while we are not permitted even to know what they are protesting about?"

"Is the League of Nations to be merely an iron ring of a few high diplomats and military men, dictating the fortunes of the world, while their own peoples are told to shut up and keep in the dark? Honestly, we are getting a bit tired of this. We have been trusting Wilson to the limit. He has been trusting us that there shall be censorship on our news from Europe. But the censorship has been tightened, not loosened since all danger from Germany is past."

"We are beginning to wonder how much the German people ever knew about atrocities in Belgium? If their Kaiser was as efficient a suppressor of information as our diplomats are, perhaps they never even heard of those German wrongs. We would not accuse our diplomats of repeating such atrocities, although the German women insist that we are starving their cities, by removing transportation. But if we choose to do even this, the peoples who will be called upon to bear the responsibility in history might still remain blantly innocent of what they were being made to do. What has happened to the democracy we fought for?"

AN ABSURD PROPOSITION

Mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle is quoted as having made a statement so absurd as to be almost unbelievable, says the Yakima Valley Herald. The statement is a proposal of a law, the mayor is quoted, "if it should be found constitutional, forcing employees of essential industries to swear allegiance to the United States government in preference to any union, and to make it illegal for them to quit their positions on strike unless there are others to replace them."

"The mayor might as well have eliminated any qualification as to essential industries. If there are any industries operating in the United States that are not essential to the well-being of the people, there can be no reason for their operating at all under strike conditions or otherwise. The Seattle executive, then, would make it illegal for any workmen to quit their positions on strike for any reason or under any circumstances. This constitutes the most radical and revolutionary declaration by a responsible public official in favor of universal working class slavery, which has been uttered in any language since the American Declaration of Independence."

"We do not believe that labor need worry much over the mayor's proposal. No such law, constitutional or otherwise, would amount to a tinkler's dam in its practical application. Such a law would be so violently offensive to the spirit of freedom of the world over, and the number over such laws in the United States are throughout the world generally is so great, that there couldn't be mustered enough force to make it effective. Mayor Hanson has declared emphatically against revolution and anarchy, and he is correctly quoted, he will go down in history as the responsible father of revolution and anarchy."

"That spouting general of reactionary politics, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, has isolated, as the doctors would say, a new political germ which he calls assistant Bolshevism. If you are not a Bolshevik, you are an assistant. You probably are in fact, for by the senator's definition those who are neither are commonly known as plutocrats."

Gossip from Washington

WANTED—REAL LABOR EXCHANGES
By ANISE

"Everyone takes it for granted that the government has a real system of Labor Exchanges," said F. A. Wall, a Washington correspondent, "when all we have is a chain of places to look after the unemployed."

All the labor boys of Seattle will remember F. A. Wall, who put the Government Employment Work Bureau in their map, and then went down to Washington to extend his efforts to other places. I dropped in to see him and asked him what the Government was doing and going to do in the employment line.

"Every organization that talks of reconstruction," he said, "comes out in favor of extending our labor exchange. They seem to think we HAVE SOME in this country. They don't know the difference between a real labor exchange and an employment agency."

"What IS the difference?" I asked.
"Only when They Have To."
"An employment agency," he said, "is mainly for Down and Outs. It waits till unemployment occurs before it begins to function. It does no scientific work in forecasting shifts in employment. They seem to think employers and the workers only come to it as a last resort, when they have to come."

agencies are in every state in the union and are doing useful work for hundreds of thousands of individuals.

But I go for really getting to the bottom of the employment situation. I need only tell you that in New York City alone there are 600 private employment agencies taking $15 to seven million dollars yearly from the pockets of the unemployed. This does not look as if the government was fulfilling the function of a real labor exchange, does it?"

Study Job-Opportunities
"A real labor exchange means real study of job-conditions and job-opportunities. It means being informed ahead of time when large pieces of construction are going to be finished and numbers of men are going to be looking for work. It means helping the community plan its work so that necessary public works shall not be started haphazard, at just the very season when men are scarce, and stopped at the very time when men need employment. It means real community planning on the subject of labor."

"A Labor Exchange in the state of Washington, for example, ought to understand the main industries of the state and the number of men they require. It ought to be able, by helping to dovetail these industries and stimulating public works during the slack season to enable large numbers of men to find their way from place to place, to reside permanently in some center like Seattle, going out to a succession of various jobs in the districts nearby."

Some Community Labor Boards
"We have had 1700 community labor boards, made up of a council of employers and employees, working with our Department during the past year. Some of them have done fine work along this line, by making a survey of the needs and labor resources of their communities."

"One place, for instance, which came crying to our Department for harvesters, found in several local situations that the harvesters they didn't need any more labor than they had at home, if they would properly divide the work. Others found high-grade machinists doing unskilled work, and their skill could be used to better advantage. Others found that skilled men, working on high-grade instruments, had been drawn away by the offer of higher pay in less skilled occupations. It was absolutely necessary that the high-grade work should be done, so wages were raised accordingly."

"There has been some good work done along these lines, but we lack sufficient leadership in the government to standardize it and make it universal.

Always Suspicious
"A real labor exchange means the pooling of all labor's activities in one center. There is a man without giving up one job, can walk in and see what other better jobs are open to him. But frankly, I don't believe, from my experience, that either the labor or the Government, or that the unions are going to do their work through us."

"There is always suspicion. One side tries to smite and the other exchanges the courage the open shop, the other that you are using them to close the shop. Out in Seattle the employers always thought we had sold out to the unions, and there is a tendency to think they should be handling the employing of their men themselves."

"Yet, I am convinced that the unions need better leadership than they can get for themselves. Their business agents are swamped acting as petty employment agencies, when they might be down in the shops or on a manufacturing job, and looking after a really comprehensive handling of the community's labor supply cannot be done piecemeal by separate unions, but only by some centralized exchange."

"The Standard Oil Company government sufficient leadership to establish such exchanges and convince the public that they are essential?"
"On this depends the question whether our country is to remain a free one or not. It is on us after the war is going to be settled by swift steps in evolution, or by the dislocations of revolution."

"It's getting harder and harder, isn't it?" I said. "For the government to stay on the fence between capital and labor?"
"Strictly speaking," he smiled back, "it can't be done."

PAVING THE WAY

By SCOTT NEARING
The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is a pioneer of international Socialism. The company owns numerous oil properties and thirteen refineries—seven in the United States, four in Canada, one in Mexico and one in Peru; its pipelines cover many states; it operates can factories, barrel factories, canning plants, glue factories and pipe shops; it has an ocean-going fleet of fifty-four vessels; it has branches and marketing machinery in Central America, South America, the West Indies, Great Britain, Italy, France, Germany, Roumania and South Africa.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has burst the boundaries of nationalism and spread its net-work of productive machinery over the earth.
"Those who built this huge business empire have paved the way for internationalism. Ignoring the confines of country, continent, race and creed, they have laid the economic foundation upon which the new world is being constructed."

They were profiteers.
They planned only to grow rich.
They had no idea that in their eagerness for the glory they were checking their own ambitions by establishing the economic basis of the co-operative commonwealth.

A Letter From Russia

By ANISE

Town of Charkov, Ukraine
Greetings,
I am writing you from the town of Charkov, Ukraine. The situation here is very serious. The Bolsheviks have taken power and are trying to establish a new order. The people are suffering from the effects of the war and the economic crisis. The government is struggling to maintain order and provide for the basic needs of the population.

Photo-Boards
There was one episode in the history of Russia that was not mentioned in the books of our history. It was what Mr. Johnson called a "photo-board." It was a board of directors of light-boards of the American people. It was a board of directors of light-boards of the American people. It was a board of directors of light-boards of the American people.

Against the Russian Reds are fighting now eight different nations: Japan, Great Britain, France, the United States of America, Belgium, Serbia, Czech-Slovakia, China and the United States of America. Now, what are you doing in this free country? Will you allow them to take the freedom from the Russian Reds and turn the Russian people back into slavery? Will you let the proletarian class struggle go back where it was before the war? I have seen the life led by the Russian workers taken prisoners. It is a hard life for them. It is a life of suffering and pain. It is a life of suffering and pain. It is a life of suffering and pain.

I do not think it ungracious and cool to the impatient friend of Clifford's, but just before we read of the marital situation, they didn't need any more labor than they had at home, if they would properly divide the work. Others found high-grade machinists doing unskilled work, and their skill could be used to better advantage. Others found that skilled men, working on high-grade instruments, had been drawn away by the offer of higher pay in less skilled occupations. It was absolutely necessary that the high-grade work should be done, so wages were raised accordingly.

Off to that far off shore,
The eyes twinkled at my answer,
That I bowed gravely as he rejoined:

GIANT BEAR WINS THE BATTLE

You would have laughed if you could have seen the whole Division of Soldiers swarmed over the place. He would lick every fighter, and swallow the whole Division, cavalry, infantry, and all their guns.

The Ant Army fought Gaa-shahin, and tried to Gaa and strange Giant Bear with this gun; but Giant Bear just laughed and said: "You fellows come right on with your Gaa-shahin and Liquid Fire. I'm not afraid of you. You are afraid of me. And soon Giant Bear had eaten the whole Ant Army. He was not afraid to attack the Ant Army. He was not afraid to attack the Ant Army. He was not afraid to attack the Ant Army.
