New Course for Spring 2016

In response to the University's Race and Equity Initiative, the Graduate School has developed a nonsequential three quarter course series.

This is the 3rd and final course in the series for graduate students. Faculty and staff are encouraged to also participate.

GRDSCH 637 SLN: 14769 1 credit CR/NC

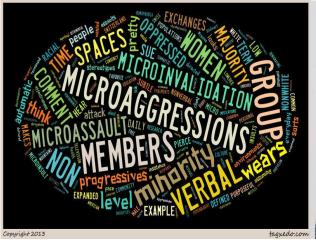

Engaging Microaggressions: Living Just Relationships

Instructors: Gino Aisenberg, PhD, MSW & Adaurennaya C. Onyewuenyi, M.Ed.

Day: Tuesdays

Time: 4:30pm-5:50pm

Location: Odegaard Library Active Learning Classroom (ACL) 141

This course is centered in the diverse and common experiences, strengths, and needs of multicultural and marginalized communities. Through active participation in guest presentations, facilitated discussions, small group work and other dynamic learning we will gain

- 1) a critical understanding of the nature of micoraggressions and their deleterious impact; and
- 2) skills to engage in dialogue to promote just relationships.