SURVIVOR-CENTERED SERVICE PROVISION FOR CSE

This one-day training by OPS is designed for service providers, chemical dependency professionals, social workers, students and community stakeholders. In this training we will focus on reducing barriers to service provision from a survivor and service professional standpoint.

As a survivor led and run agency OPS staff and participants are experts in service provision from a survivor-centered lens... all the way from agency structure to direct service work with survivors, we will give you the tools you need to make a real impact in your work with those who have experienced commercial sexual exploitation.

Featuring a panel of OPS participants discussing their own experiences with service provision during and after the life.
