

UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON

School of Social Work

Social Work and Criminal-Legal Systems: Fall Panel

Please join the School of Social Work for the first event in a yearlong series

How are practicing social workers thinking about police defunding, prison abolition, and mass incarceration? What stances are they taking and what pressures do they face? How do they navigate their personal commitments with systems that challenge them? And how do they maintain their resilience and capacity?

Join an interactive panel conversation with four MSWs who graduated from the UW and whose practices place them squarely within the complexities of the criminal justice system. This discussion aims to shed light on social work's role and responsibility within a rapidly changing political environment and during a critical social justice moment for our community. This panel is sponsored by the BASW Program.

Monday, November 16th, 5:30-7pm

<https://washington.zoom.us/j/91602247237>

Panelists:

Krystal Correa, MSW
Juvenile Court Services Social Worker
King County

Maria Kang, MSW
Prison Education and Re-entry Navigator
Seattle Central College

Teddy McGlynn-Wright, MSW
Facilitator and Educator

Jesse Rawlins, MSW
Public Policy Manager
Public Defender Association

BE BOUNDLESS

