

Pharmacy Class of 2013

Pledge of Professionalism

We, the University of Washington School of Pharmacy Class of 2013, pledge:

- to be driven by compassion to improve the quality of our patients' lives, to always treat them in an understanding manner without judgment, and to do all we can to alleviate suffering.
- to uphold honesty and integrity in order to foster trustworthy relationships with our patients, colleagues, and other healthcare professionals in order to provide optimal patient care.
- to practice altruism by putting the interest of our patients above our own in an effort to establish mutual trust.
- to express genuine empathy through active listening and effective communication.
- to advocate for change by being actively involved in the community, leading by example, and being open to ideas and beliefs that will advance the profession.
- to dedicate our personal and professional lives to excellence by being life-long learners and educators in order to promote quality patient care.
