

Interested in international development or global health?

Apply to the

to build a healthcare clinic in Honduras this summer!

We will be working in the rural community of El Canton from June 12-19, 2012. The people in this community have to walk more than two hours away to the nearest healthcare clinic. Global Brigades has been working with the government to ensure the sustainability of the clinic.

The program costs include airfare + $750 in-country fee that will cover transportation, lodging, and food during our stay. As a team from UW, we will be fundraising to cover our expenses so please do not let money be an issue. Prior to the trip, we will be meeting for a short period every week to talk about how to best approach our good intentions and make a meaningful impact in El Canton.

No prior experience in international development or global health is required. Students from ALL disciplines are encouraged to apply. Speaking Spanish is not mandatory, and translators will be provided during the brigade. As this is a new organization at UW, you will have the chance to shape it to your vision. If you would like to take on a leadership role, we encourage you to apply for an officer position. Please submit the application before Wednesday 11/30/11 at 11pm to be considered for an officer position. We will accept these on a rolling basis.

Apply: <https://catalyst.uw.edu/webq/survey/bingjie/147789>

We will accept participant applications on a rolling basis until Saturday 12/31/2011 at 11pm.

Contact bingjie@uw.edu for questions.

Architecture Brigades is a program of the international nonprofit Global Brigades. Global Brigades is the world's largest student-led global health and sustainable development organization. In 2010, more than 4,000 volunteers from 160 university chapters in North America and Europe traveled to provide health and economic development solutions to more than 50,000 beneficiaries through our teams in Panama, Honduras and Ghana.