

FRONTERA/Border Health Scholars Program

June 1st to August 6th 2013

Focusing research on the border, the FRONTERA/Border Health Scholars program is a ten-week summer research immersion at the Arizona Health Sciences Center, University of Arizona in Tucson, Arizona.

Undergraduate, graduate and medical students will explore health inequities along the tri-nation boundaries of the United States-Mexico-Tohono O'odham Nation. Latin American Studies course credit is available.

Program Benefits

Experience the unique dynamics of the border region first-hand and benefit from:

- research skills
- service learning
- mentorship
