

Statira Biggs Scholarship Application

The Statira Biggs Scholarship is a spring quarter award for students who are residents of Japan, North Korea, South Korea or Northeast China. The intent of the scholarship is to assist students whose admission and study at the University of Washington would tend to promote peace, understanding and goodwill between the people of the student's country and the United States. Recipients must attend full-time during the Spring Quarter (12 credits for undergraduates and 10 credits for graduates).

Preference will be given to students who have a cumulative grade point average of 3.5 or above and who are not recipients of a University of Washington scholarship or departmental funding during the current year. These funds are limited and the amount of the award may vary each year.
