UW Summer Youth Programs
The UW’s Summer Youth Programs are a fun opportunity for students to discover inventive ways of doing, thinking and learning. Our programs are led by experienced teachers and subject experts who spend the academic year teaching in public and private schools. All-day and part-day programs for elementary, middle and high school students are enriched with the variety of resources available on the UW campus.

Elementary Students Summer Day Camps
Designed for students entering 1st through 5th grades, the programs explore science, art, drama, fitness and creative writing.

High School Students Short Courses
Created for 9th through 12th graders, short courses include creative writing, computer programming, visual arts and playwriting.

Middle School Academies and Short Courses
Courses focus on robotics, dance, architecture and computer programming for students entering 6th through 8th grades.
