

Incorporating Autistic Perspective and Principles of Neurodiversity into ABA Practice

Now, more than ever, BCBAs and ABA providers are on a path to provide compassionate, person-centered ABA services. In this webinar, providers will build a foundational understanding about the relationship between the practice of ABA and Neurodiversity. We will also review the history of behavior analysis and current ABA practice through a critical lens. Discussion of challenges related to practicing ABA will include inherent problems, long-term problems, and current practice problems.

Course Objectives:

- Operationally define ableism and provide one example of ableism
- Operationally define the "Double Empathy Problem" (Milton, 2012) and provide one example
- Be able to identify problems with ABA from each area: inherent problems, practice problems, and long-term problems
- Create action steps to incorporate principles of Neurodiversity into their ABA practice
