

Conserving Plant Biodiversity in a Changing World: A View from Northwestern North America

University of Washington Botanic Gardens, Seattle, WA
2-day conference March 13-14, 2012

We face an uncertain future – economically, politically, and climatically. Those concerned with managing, researching, or protecting rare plants and their habitats need to be aware of these changes and have the necessary tools to effectively address them. We will have papers, both invited and contributed, that will engage all in a dialogue intended to raise questions and find solutions. Participants from throughout northwestern North America will contribute ideas and meet colleagues for future collaboration.

Call for Abstracts open until October 28, 2011

For more information, please visit:

<http://bit.ly/plantbiodiversity2012>

