From Academia to Mainstream Media: Developing Your Writing Portfolio

Students Writing in Public is a collective of graduate students interested in publishing outside of academic media and provides a forum for the pursuit of individual and collaborative writing projects in public scholarship. This month we welcome Michelle Goodman, local freelance writer and author of The Anti 9-to-5 Guide, for a workshop on developing a writing portfolio. Michelle will discuss strategies for breaking into non-academic media and for appealing to different public audiences.

Space is limited to 20 participants. Interested graduate students should email swip@u.washington.edu by October 30 with a brief paragraph describing their interest in writing outside the academy. Please also indicate the genre or type of writing in which you seek to publish, and include 2-3 questions for Michelle Goodman. This information will help our guest speaker tailor the workshop to the participants' interests and goals.

Michelle Goodman is a local freelance writer whose work has appeared in Salon, Bust, Bitch, Bark, the Seattle Times, and the San Francisco Bay Guardian. She is author of The Anti 9-to-5 Guide (2007). To find out more about Michelle Goodman and her work, visit <http://www.anti9to5guide.com>.

Students Writing in Public meets 3:30–5:00 pm Tuesdays in Smith 107 during Fall 2007. For more information, email at swip@u.washington.edu or visit our website: www.simpsoncenter.org/swip.
