

University of Washington Nutritional Sciences Program

Presents

THE FOOD DAY SYMPOSIUM

When: Thursday, October 27, 2011
12:30 - 5:00 pm

Where: Parrington Hall Commons, University of Washington Campus

What: A symposium bringing together UW faculty and students, top researchers, and stakeholders to discuss the latest research and curriculum on food, health and our local food environment.

Agenda:

12:30 - 1:10 “Research Opportunities in an Interdisciplinary Framework”

1:10 - 1:30 Refreshments and networking

1:30 - 3:00 “The Big Idea: Built Environments, Obesity & Nutrition”
Presentation, panel discussion and Q & A with principal investigators of the Seattle Obesity Study to review the health and food environment in Seattle.

3:00 - 3:30 Refreshments and networking

3:30 - 5:00 “Investing in our Future: Developing Undergraduate Curriculum in Nutrition & Food Studies”
Breakout session for faculty, students and, stakeholders to discuss a potential undergraduate program in Nutrition & Food Studies. Knowledge objectives, possible curriculum, and interdisciplinary relationships across UW’s campus will be discussed.

*There is no charge to attend the Symposium. RSVPs are appreciated but not required. To RSVP or for additional information, contact Anna Gabriel at annakc@u.washington.edu or (206) 941-9007.