By BY ZIMBERMAN

BOSTON—Baltimore's, Orioles' bats finally came alive in the 15th World Series, as the Birds defeated the Red Sox, 13-1, in the third game.

The Orioles' offensive surge was sparked by John Murphy and Brooks Robinson, who both had three hits and three runs scored.

"I don't know what happened," Murphy said. "I just kept getting base hits and running the bases." Robinson added, "I think the key was to keep the ball in the infield and take advantage of the Red Sox' defense."
