INTERNSHIPS & CO-OPS

- Intern and co-op positions provide practical experience, bring relevance to classroom learning and often lead to careers.
- BSE students are expected to have a minimum of one internship (with minimum duration of 3 months).
- Many students have 6-12 months of intern and co-op experiences.
- Compensation ranges from $2,500-$4,000 per month.
- Typical total earnings are $10,000-$20,000 while in college.

INDEPENDENT WORK

A number of work opportunities are available. BSE students regularly work in the Wollenberg Paper and Bioresource Science Laboratory and other laboratories.

Revised May 2018
WPPF SCHOLARSHIP INFORMATION

Application
- Contact the Foundation at wppf@uw.edu.
- All applications are due by April 1. Awards will be made in early May and will be applied to the following fall term.
- Apply for financial aid through UW if applicable. Some WPPF scholarships are need-based.

Eligibility
- Bioresource Science & Engineering (BSE) or BSE-ChemE major
- US citizen or permanent resident

Duration
Renewable term-to-term until graduation (9 terms for sophomores earning BSE degree; 6 terms for transfer students; 12 terms for BSE-ChemE degree)

Conditions
- Maintain 3.0 or higher cumulative GPA at the UW.
- Stay on the BSE or BSE-ChemE academic curricula.
- Adequate WPPF resources are available.

Amounts
- Vary according to academic performance, year in the program and Foundation resources.
- $5,000 incentive scholarships are awarded to select incoming BSE students (sophomores and community college junior transfers) by the School of Environmental and Forest Sciences (SEFS). These scholarships transition to WPPF scholarships for subsequent years depending on academic performance.
- Scholarship amounts may be periodically adjusted to recognize tuition changes and available financial resources.

Award Notes
- Amounts below apply to the 2018-19 academic year.
- Scholarship awards for transfer students reflect the student’s year in the BSE curriculum.
