Promoting public health research, policy, and practice is the mission of the American Journal of Public Health. As we widen our scope to encompass global issues, we also sharpen our focus to support the needs of public health practitioners. We invite contributions of original unpublished research, opinion and commentary, departments, and letters to the editor.

Cover: Berta Martinez receives a tetanus vaccination in June 2000 in the Mexico City neighborhood of Chakal. The area was swall after the collapse of a canal wall caused by intense rains. There had been smaller floods in recent years, and residents say they had been appealing for months for officials to repair the canal walls or to contain the water in sewer pipes.
