EDITORIAL
Better models for AIDS prevention: HIV control is vector control
Philip Alcabes (USA) .................................................. 145–148

ORIGINAL PAPERS
The impact of an HIV prevention intervention for injecting drug users in Svetlogorsk, Belarus: model predictions
Peter Vickerman, Charlotte Watts (UK) ........................................... 149–164
HIV risk behaviour among participants of syringe exchange programmes in central/eastern Europe and Russia
Don C. Des Jarlais, Patricia Friedmann, Jean-Paul Grund, Judith Milliken, Stephen Titus, Catherine Zadoretsky, Theresa Peris, Valentina Bodrova, Elena Zemlianova (USA, Russia) .................. 165–170
Governing failure: politics, heroin, families
Heather Brook (Australia) ...................................................... 171–180
Cops, drugs and the community: establishing consultative harm reduction structures in two Western Australian locations
Richard Midford, John Acres, Simon Lenton, Wendy Loxley, Kevin Boots (Australia) ........................................... 181–188
The impact of a police crackdown on a street drug scene: evidence from the street
Campbell Atten, David Moore, Peter Higgs, Jenny Kelsall, Michael Kerger (Australia) ........................................... 189–198
Drug offending and criminal justice responses: practitioners' perspectives
Lorraine Beyer, Nick Crofts, Gary Reid (Australia) .................. 199–207

POLICY AND INTERVENTION HISTORIES
Marketing harm reduction: a historical narrative of the International Harm Reduction Development Program
Philip O. Coffin (USA) ...................................................... 209–220

REVIEW ESSAY
A critical reading of the World Drug Report 2000
Carla Rossi (Italy) .......................................................... 221–231

BOOK REVIEWS
What we need is a world drug reform report
Arnold S. Trobach (USA) ...................................................... 233–234

Contents continued on page 243