Journal of Substance Use

VOLUME 9  NUMBER 3-4  JUNE 2004

Special Issue on the Addiction Severity Index

Introductory Article
Measuring "addiction" in Europe: The diffusion of the Addiction Severity Index and its purposes and functions
Kerstin Stenius and Robin Room

Original Articles
Three problems with the ASI composite scores
Hans Olav Melberg

The addiction severity index (ASI) and the severity of dependence: How large are the associations
Anders Romelsjö

Implementing ASI and other instruments to professionalize treatment across national borders: Experiences from the IPTRP project
Vera Segraeus, Eric Broekaert, David Oberg, Björn Saltmén, Vеerle Soyez, Marie-Jeanne Haack and Jane Wilson

Introduction of the EuropASI in Norway: Clinical and research experiences from a cost-effectiveness study
Grethe Lauritzen and Edde Ravndal

Standardized assessment in substance abuse treatment in the Netherlands: The case of the Addiction Severity Index and new developments
Theo G. Broekman, Gerard M. Schipperen, Maarten W. J. Koeter and Wim van den Brink

The diffusion of the ASI in Denmark: Implementation of a national monitoring system based on the EuropASI
Leif Vind and Dorte Hecksher

Implementing the Addiction Severity Index (ASI) in Swedish human services sectors: Experiences, problems and prospects
Karin Tengvall, Anders Andén, Hans Bergman, Christer Engström, Siv Nyström, Björn Saltmén and David Öberg
Perspectives on staff resistance to using the ASI
S. J. Wicks

Drug counsellors and documentation systems: A love–hate relationship
Martin Schmid and Ingrid Vogt

Hungarian adaptation of the European Addiction Severity Index
József Gerevich, Erika Bácskai and Sándor Rózsa

Evaluation of the effectiveness of drug-abuse treatment with implementation of standard instruments. The experience in Ukraine
Sergiy Dvoryak

EuropASI: A standard in de Sluiter, Belgium
Veerle Raes and Geert Lombaert

Documentation, assessment and social control: ASI and the shaping of the discourse on addiction
Safari Hanninen