From a Message to a Movement

Addiction Summit Group Begins to Build Strategy for Elevating the Field  pg. 51

Treating the Couple When One Is Addicted  pp. 18

Improving Intervention: Two Better than One?  pp. 24

Counselors Must Help Plan Clients' Aftercare  pg. 29
18 Behavioral Couples Therapy: Making a Difference for Families

19 Effective Continuing-Care Planning: An Addiction Counselor’s View

20 REPORT OF PROCEEDINGS:
Providence Summit on Addiction

6 Letter from the Editor
How much should the evidence drive our coverage?

8 Letters
Advocacy strategies; an exchange on opiate detox

14 Commentary
We need to know more about the properties of many street drugs.
By Cortea E. Ertosun, Ph.D.

16 World View
Bill Cost, certification chairman for NAADAC. The Association for Addiction Professionals, learned on a visit to Cyprus about how addiction could be taken more seriously there in the U.S.

46 Training
Officials with Traumatic Learning describe how the Internet can be a vehicle for treatment organizations to go beyond the basics of staff training.

48 Roadblocks to Recovery
Before you label your client "belligerent," take time to understand what actually might be going on beyond the expressions of anger. First in a series.
By Nicholas A. Beo, Ph.D.

51 CE Quiz
From continuing education credits; this issue’s quiz is used to the article on page 18.

52 Innovation
Peter B. Gillman, Ph.D., writes that Clinical Process Control is a quality-management tool that can help addiction treatment organizations improve the human line.

54 Book Review
The field finally has access to good information on evidence-supported strategies for treating adolescents. By Linda M. Jordan

57 Letter from the Publisher
Recent meetings educated clinicians and celebrated the work of field leaders.

58 Of Note
News, announcements and other developments from the field.

64 Recovery
Michael Barry used to be on the air every night, but what the viewers saw wasn’t reality.
By Guy Bus

15 42 - 8 35

18 52 - 8 35

Addiction Professional • July 2004
v. 2(4)