February 2000

We are wrapping up our survey of faculty use of instructional technology. I'm sure that many of you will breath a sigh of relief that this is the last time we will contact you about the survey, but hope you will excuse our persistence given the importance of the topic.

As you may recall, we have been asked to carry out the Faculty Survey on Instructional Technology by PETTT,<sup>1</sup> a UIF program intended to enable effective uses of instructional technology at the UW. There is considerable interest in the use of various technologies, and PETTT is engaged in helping faculty develop pedagogical approaches that go beyond the merely innovative. The survey has been sponsored by the Provost's Office, the Faculty Senate, and the Faculty Council on Educational Technology.

Every response is important. The survey will take about 20 minutes to complete, and you may fill out and return the enclosed questionnaire and Participant ID Form, or visit: <https://depts.washington.edu/oeasurv/facsurv/itsurv.html>. Please return the survey by February 28, as we will begin summarizing responses early in March. For those of you who experienced difficulty responding online using a combination of IE and Mackintosh, we have modified the survey program and would like to ask if you would try again.

Your response is voluntary and confidential (names will be removed from the database once the data are complete), and no individual responses will be reported. You may leave blank any question you don't wish to answer.

Thank you for your time. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions or concerns about the survey.

Sincerely,

Nana Lowell
Associate Director
