Study Gas Rationing Program

West Coast Preparing for Emergency, but New Meetings Give Rise to Optimism

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—Programs for rationing gasoline in the West were mapped today, while a cautious note of optimism crept out of the meetings aimed at ending the California refinery strike.

Six major companies, chief source of gasoline for the western states were struck Sept. 4, by a 100 C. I. O. order, mandating wage increases. Another 6,000 Standard Oil employees, members of an independent union, have respected the C. I. O. picket lines. Shell Oil first of the six companies to reopen negotiations, held another meeting with union representatives yesterday, and another session was arranged for today.

A statement in Optimistic Golden Bowers state consultation supervisor said the "results" of yesterday's meeting was co-operative. The parties made it a point to conclude their arguments as soon as possible.

While he cautioned against too optimistic an interpretation Bowers said that the "possibilities" for a settlement by the end of the week are favorable than at any time since the strike started.

The other struck companies, including Standard of California and Shell are through, Associated, Richmond and the Texas company still have agreed to reopening negotiations. Bowers said, meetings have been scheduled either here or at Los Angeles.

Out of gas, signs were seen in Southern California, and in some of the west's biggest oil fields. Conditions elsewhere in the Coast were better, indicating California's supply was estimated by industry spokesmen as good for 10 to 25 days. No gasoline was exported in Oregon and Washington for at least a week.

Will Name Coordinator
But in California Governor Warren announced immediate action on the request of Secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission and oil industry committee to carry out Krug's recommendations for equitable distribution of gasoline and oil reserves.

A 23-member advisory committee was appointed within the industry to distribute available supplies. The committee will meet tomorrow in Los Angeles.

Is In Riot

Monday in which 18 western sector police were killed.

The Russians also have turned down a French demand for the release of another 15 western sector police who were kidnapped by Soviet secret police in a subway morning while traveling under a Russian safe-conduct guarantee.

About 12 Russian tank fighters roared over Berlin early in the day. Later, they were in the air over the city, dropping a few planes and one of mine. They flew over the Zehlendorf district, an American residential section, stunning, diving and leaving vapor trails but remaining at altitudes of from 25,000 to 30,000 feet. This, an American spokesman said, was not a violation of four-power flight regulations which apply only to flights of 10,000 feet or less.

Allied officers said nothing unusual, thus far, had occurred in the war-torn corridors to interfere with the massive Allied program to supply the blockaded city.

The U. S. spokesman, Lt. Col. B. E. Steadman of the U. S. military government's armed forces division, added:

"However, I can understand the desirability interest, especially over the vapor trails. They know those will come in the day of warfare."

Danish naval authorities in Copenhagen reported that at least 50 Soviet planes visited Danish territory in the last 24 hours. The planes were seen in the Baltic. They said one group flew low over a Danish island and the authorities asserted that the planes crossed the international border. Russian planes visited the island in the spring of 1943 and remained 30 minutes, withdrawing in 1945 after Danish protests.

Army May Use Docks

shown down with the Army has ordered a general mobilization in the harbor area, according to a Russian spokesman in the Pacific.

The C. I. O. longshore leader speaking for striking unions which have lined up all shipping to the West Coast told Army officers yesterday that he would lead military cargo if paid the wages asked of employers during recent negotiations.

He said that the C. I. O. members involved in the strike would serve on ships carrying military cargo if paid the wage current on the east coast.

As an alternative he said the longshoremen and the seafarers would lead for present pay with the provision that retroactive adjustments be made at the end of the strike.

When negotiations broke down a week ago the longshoremen were demanding an increase of 15 cents per hour, which would bring their pay to $1.82 an hour.

Bridges outlined his proposal to newsmen before he met with Army officers.

The longshore chief had no comment after the meeting, and Major General James A. Hoge, commander of the San Francisco port of embarkation, merely told the press that the Army would meet with the longshoremen on Monday.

"This was an exploratory meeting in the hope of moving Army interest along in the direction of the request of various unions involved."

Waterfront employers had nothing to say on this latest phase of the strike.

Union officials said, however, General Lever agreed to refer the proposals to the War Department in Washington, D. C.

As Honolulu newspapers who were crowded that the island's limited stock of food-stuffs would run out crowded into stores. It was necessary to take up of store entrance to handle the crowds. The rice supply was being exhausted.

The Associated Press, quoting Columbia University said the Pacific Coast longshore secretary reported he had been "contacted" by the Army.

"I informed the Army," Collins said, "that a 4,000 longshoremen in Tacoma would take care of their firm's quota of work if the Army has been moving some cargo from Tacoma in the future."

Collins added, however, that Tacoma should not be considered an open port.

"We do not," he said, "intend to add on more to our normal commitment in Tacoma. We are not in the strike-breaking business."
