TRUST seeks to provide a continuous connection between rural, small city underserved communities, medical education, and health professionals in our region. Our goal is to create a full-circle pipeline by guiding qualified students through a special curriculum that connects continuity communities in WWAMI to the University of Washington School of Medicine and its network of affiliated residency programs in an effort to help meet the workforce needs of the region.

Greetings Dillon!

I am very eager to begin my medical training in Dillon. I feel privileged to be learning medicine in Montana.

I grew up in Butte, a place that instilled in me the importance of community and the special value of being from the Big Sky state. I attended MSU in Bozeman where I majored in math and photography. After graduating, I worked as teacher, first leading photography workshops in the National Parks and most recently working as an English instructor for medical school students and physicians in Turkey through the U.S. Fulbright program. My time spent teaching and working after college fueled my growing interest in medicine, and after a bit of catching up, I am now embarking on my journey to become a doctor.

My wife, Courtney, is currently pursuing her PhD in Chemistry at Stanford. We have had lots of adventures together over the last eight years; ranging from living in Istanbul to backpacking trips in the mountains of Montana. While studying medicine means some time apart, we both couldn't be happier about this next big adventure.

I am looking forward to learning in Dillon, and thank you for welcoming me into your community. If you see me zipping around on the streets with my camera or training at the clinic please don't hesitate to say hello.
