

LAKE CHELAN CLINIC WELCOMES

1ST YEAR MEDICAL STUDENT

KEVIN CRITCHLOW

My name is Kevin Critchlow. I am an incoming student at the University of Washington School of Medicine with my first-year campus in Spokane. I will be spending a week this summer before classes start in Chelan to get to know my primary mentor Dr. Tobe Harberd and the Chelan community. I am excited to get to know you all more over many subsequent visits the next four years.

I am originally from Bellevue, and I lived there until age 15. In high school, my family moved to Westlake Village, California, near Los Angeles. I attended Yale University in Connecticut where I majored in Biomedical Engineering. Eager to return to Washington State after graduating, I spent a year as an AmeriCorps volunteer in East Lewis County, where I tutored and mentored teens, and I taught English as a Second Language. I studied MRI imaging in college, but my service experience affirmed my desire to find ways to improve health with a community approach to medicine, lifestyle and behavior. My AmeriCorps term also cemented the Evergreen State as my home.

Growing up, I devoted my time to sports. I never could and I never will refuse a game of soccer or basketball, a run, a bike ride, or anything involving hiking boots, canoes or snowshoes. As I've gotten older, I've diversified my interests to include cooking, gardening, folk music, and art. As excited as I am for the opportunity to learn medicine in Chelan, I am looking forward to sharing many a soccer game, barbecue, and banjo jam! I'm honored to join the vibrant Chelan community, and I hope to contribute a little bit of my own spirit over the next four years.
