Entering Class of 2015

TRUST seeks to provide a continuous connection between rural, small city underserved communities, medical education, and health professionals in our region. Our goal is to create a full-circle pipeline by guiding qualified students through a special curriculum that connects continuity communities in WWAMI to the University of Washington School of Medicine and its network of affiliated residency programs in an effort to help meet the workforce needs of the region.

Hi Port Townsend! My name is Emma Robson and I am very excited to get to know you!

I grew up in Connecticut with three siblings and some great dogs. I did my undergraduate studies at Middlebury College in Vermont, where I majored in neuroscience, ran cross country and volunteered as an EMT. After graduating, I moved West and have worked at public health and community organizations serving Native communities in Portland, OR, and King County, WA.

Outside of work and school I love going on long trail runs, experimenting in the kitchen, bike commuting and knitting. I am currently trying to improve my New York Times crossword puzzle skills and teach myself to quilt. I have spent two years total in Nepal, one year of which was on a Fulbright research grant. I am back there this spring visiting friends (and incidentally riding out aftershocks!) before I start at UW School of Medicine.

I am very excited to be starting my medical education with the community of Port Townsend. I look forward to meeting and learning from you all!
