Entering Class of 2015

TRUST seeks to provide a continuous connection between rural, small city underserved communities, medical education, and health professionals in our region. Our goal is to create a full-circle pipeline by guiding qualified students through a special curriculum that connects continuity communities in WWAMI to the University of Washington School of Medicine and its network of affiliated residency programs in an effort to help meet the workforce needs of the region.

Greetings Hailey!

My name is Tyler Wines, and I am extremely excited to begin my medical training in Hailey and the surrounding Wood River Valley. I was born and raised right over the hill in Gooding. Having been raised in a rural community has instilled in me a strong sense of community and has also allowed me to discover the benefits and challenges that come along with providing healthcare in rural areas. I am thrilled that Hailey is going to become an integral part of my medical training. Growing up in rural Idaho allowed me to be extremely active competitive rodeo. I was given the opportunity to study at the University of Montana Western while competing on their rodeo team and serving as student body president. After graduating with my bachelors, I moved back to the great State of Idaho and received my Masters in cell and molecular biology from Boise State University. I was exposed to the global impact physicians can have on rural communities through volunteer service at a rural hospital in Zanzibar, Africa. This experience allowed me to gain an understanding to the importance of increasing access to healthcare for rural communities. My time spent outside of rural communities has been gratifying, but I am anxious to return to Southern Idaho as a TRUST Scholar and continue my education under the guidance of Dr. Frank Batcha.

Thank you for welcoming me into your community!
