Entering Class of 2016

TRUST seeks to provide a continuous connection between rural, small city underserved communities, medical education, and health professionals in our region. Our goal is to create a full-circle pipeline by guiding qualified students through a special curriculum that connects continuity communities in WWAMI to the University of Washington School of Medicine and its network of affiliated residency programs in an effort to help meet the workforce needs of the region.

Hello,

I am Alex Davis, a born and raised Girdwood Alaskan girl. My parents and the mountainous valley of my hometown sculpted my outdoor enthusiasm and appreciation for the natural sciences. Community means a lot to me and therefore, to contribute to something greater, my community, grants me a lot of joy and reward. My appreciation for the human body and its natural healing system began with my own health, and I imagine I will forever be working towards improving it. Health is everything. I crave to share my passion with others and to aid them whatever way I can to enhance their own wellness and together our understanding of health. My interests in emergency and primary care, and my goals to work in rural Alaska make the Trust Program an excellent opportunity. It will prepare me for the unique challenges of Alaskan rural healthcare. I have much to learn and am eager to see what new perspectives and stories I encounter on this path of education and healing. In my spare time, I seek outdoor adventures and work on improving my own sustainability via fishing and gardening.
