TRUST seeks to provide a continuous connection between rural, small city underserved communities, medical education, and health professionals in our region. Our goal is to create a full-circle pipeline by guiding qualified students through a special curriculum that connects continuity communities in WWAMI to the University of Washington School of Medicine and its network of affiliated residency programs in an effort to help meet the workforce needs of the region.

Hello, Juneau!

My name is Connor Rogan, and I am an entering medical student in the University of Washington WWAMI Alaska TRUST Program. I am very excited to start my medical training in Juneau and I look forward to spending a lot of time in your community over the next several years.

I was born and raised in Kodiak, Alaska where I worked as a structural welder and commercial/harvest diver. I earned my Bachelor's degree in Biology at the University of Alaska Fairbanks. It was while studying biology that I gained an interest in medicine and ultimately decided to pursue becoming a physician. Over the following years, I had many opportunities to shadow various physicians in Fairbanks and Kodiak in order to view different specialties and areas of medicine. I do not know what specialty I want to go into yet, but I do know that I want to practice medicine in a coastal town like the one I grew up in.

I have visited Juneau before during football trips in High School (we lost) but I have not had time to really explore and learn about the history and uniqueness of the area. I look forward to meeting new friends and in my free time enjoying all of the hiking, history, and diving that Juneau has to offer!
