Restoration by Design

Create. Locate. Communicate.

home

Welcome to the beta version of Restoration by Design. We are excited to get started! Read the descriptions below and select the category most appropriate for your current needs or go to our Tips page for some of our favorite suggestions for using RBD.

Create will take you through a step by step process for creating an ecological restoration project. It will provide you with information and resources along the way.

Locate will direct you to the Seattle Urban Nature Interactive Habitat Map. It is full of valuable information with regards to research and planning. It's an interactive map, so spend some time getting to know how it works. It will most likely be a reference you return to again and again.

Communicate allows you access to the restoration community. Here you can ask questions of other professionals and experts as well as answer some questions yourself. Use this section to form relationships with others in your neighborhood. Collaborate, communicate and create together.

The Restoration by Design Web Application was created to help stewards and communities do effective and efficient ecological restoration in the city of Seattle. It provides a means of communication between practitioners, the ability to quickly locate ecological information about the local area, and provides a suite of tools and design principals to aid in the creation of high quality projects.

This web sit will be used as an education resource to aid the ongoing city wide efforts to restore Seattles forested green space. It was created through a partnership betwen The UW Restoration Ecology Network and Seattle Urban Nature a local ecological information organization.

Visit us at: restorationbydesign.net