A CDC PREVENTION RESEARCH CENTER

Reflecting on Our Successes as We Look Forward

HPRC continues to be a proud member of the CDC Prevention Research Centers (PRCs) Program. Since the PRC program began in 1986, HPRC has partnered with communities for prevention research that promotes healthy aging, impacts practice, and supports underserved community members.

Thank you to our staff, faculty, students, and community partners! Your input and expertise make HPRC a successful center and vital organization.

CELEBRATE THE HIGHLIGHTS

Promoting Cancer Prevention Through a Special Journal Supplement

HPRC researchers helped produce a supplement of "Preventive Medicine," using collaboration to elevate their findings and identify disparities in public health as part of the CDC's Cancer Prevention and Control Research Network.
