

ONBOARDING TOOLKIT

FOR UW MANAGERS

PROFESSIONAL & ORGANIZATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON

Human Resources

Dear Manager,

Congratulations on the successful hire of your new employee! We look forward to being part of their onboarding process through their in-person Welcome Day orientation.

This is an exciting time for you and your new employee, but it is only the beginning. Research shows that providing onboarding throughout an employee's first 90 days greatly increases their retention and productivity. In addition to Welcome Day orientation, there are many activities and processes that can help your employee feel welcomed and supported.

This Onboarding Toolkit provides checklists for you and your employee, as well as suggestions for how to develop and maintain a successful relationship. It also provides suggestions for developing your internal onboarding process.

Feel free to contact us for help at 206-543-1957 or pod@uw.edu.

Happy onboarding,
Professional & Organizational Development

WHAT IS ONBOARDING?

- Brings your newly hired talent up to speed with the policies, processes, culture, expectations and day-to-day responsibilities of your unit.
- Ensures new employees feel welcome, engaged and inspired, confirming why they joined your unit and the University of Washington.

WHY IS ONBOARDING IMPORTANT?

- Builds the UW's and your unit's reputation for being a great employer to work for, with great training, clear leadership and a strong organization.
- Helps you retain your staff members.
- Reduces high turnover costs.
- Increases staff engagement and productivity.
- Builds a cohesive team and fosters collaboration.

CONTENTS

Onboarding Overview [3]

A one-page process overview to help you understand what's handled in Workday, by the new employee, by the supervisor or department, or through the Welcome Day employee orientation and benefits session.

Before the First Day [4]

This checklist provides suggestions and ideas for you to set the stage for your employee's success.

New Employee Checklist [6]

This is your go-to list for the initial information new employees should receive. It's recommended that you and your employee sign the checklist to confirm that they received necessary information. Keep the signed copy on file.

Mentor Checklist [8]

Delegate some onboarding tasks by assigning the new employee a mentor — someone who knows the ropes and can be a positive role model. Having a mentor also provides new employees with a “safe” person to go to with questions they don't want to bother you with or want to ask without jeopardizing your confidence.

Manager's Onboarding To-Do List [10]

Although some items can be delegated to a new employee's colleague or mentor, there are a number of tasks that you as a manager should accomplish over the employee's first 90 days.

Check-In Meeting Questions [11]

It's strongly recommended that you meet regularly with your new employee and allow time for questions, information sessions and training. These sample questions give you a good starting point for what to ask as you continue to meet with your new employee and ensure their success.

New Employee Success Profile [14]

Success is sometimes hard to gauge, especially from a new employee's perspective. Use this profile to identify and share your expectations and vision of success for a new employee's first 30, 60 and 90 days. Talking about what success looks like helps your new employee set goals and priorities and can determine what on-the-job training may be needed.

Recognition Profile [16]

This tool allows you to solicit information so that you can ensure any recognition given is on target — meaningful, comfortable and personal for the new employee. Sharing this tool also communicates that recognition is important to your work group and the UW.

Onboarding Mistakes to Avoid [17]

A helpful list of what NOT to do in the onboarding process.

BEFORE THE FIRST DAY

► Consider the following steps to build a positive relationship with your new employee. The ideas below will ensure that the connection you build with your new employee is strong from the start.

- ❑ Send an official hire letter outlining the specifics of the employee's position, including reporting relationship, salary, etc. View sample hire confirmation letters at: hr.uw.edu/forms
- ❑ Stay in regular communication with your employee if there is a long period of time between the offer and the start date. Send a packet of introductory information about your unit and the University.
- ❑ Send an informal announcement to your unit about their new team member and their background.
- ❑ Meet with your unit HR or your payroll coordinator to learn what paperwork a new hire needs to complete.
- ❑ Shortly before the start date, send your new employee an email that includes the following:
 - Date and time to arrive the first day
 - What to bring on the first day to complete the I-9: <https://www.uscis.gov/i-9-central/complete-correct-form-i-9/completing-section-2-employer-review-and-attestation>
 - Where to report and who to ask for upon arrival
 - Transportation and/or parking information
 - What to expect during the first days on the job (include a schedule of the first few days if possible)
 - What to wear
 - Options for lunch (better yet, arrange to take them out to lunch with you and/or a group of colleagues)
- ❑ Select one of your staff members to be a mentor for your new hire's first few months.
- ❑ Encourage your staff to send welcome emails to your new hire.
- ❑ Set up appointments with individuals that your new employee should meet.
- ❑ Set aside time in your calendar to make sure you're available for your new employee's first days and weeks.

- ❑ Set up your new employee's workstation, including their desk and/or office computer. Provide a clean desk in a cubical or office that is in "move-in" condition.
- ❑ Include a welcome sign on the new staff member's door or workstation.
- ❑ Set up phone(s): Determine if your new employee will need a new phone, or have an existing one reconfigured. Also be sure that their new voicemail box is set up on the employee's first work day.
- ❑ Have building keys or other access methods ready.
- ❑ Make sure necessary supplies are available. Plan ahead to ensure that new employees have all the required office supplies on their first day, including pens, paper, post-its, message pads, office keys, etc. Remember that remote employees may have tech requirements (e.g., webcam or headset).
- ❑ Order business cards if necessary/possible. UW Creative Communications has a web-based ordering process.
- ❑ Make sure new staff members are added to appropriate email lists and calendar systems.
- ❑ Create a first-week schedule for new employees so that they have something to do that is meaningful and helps them hit the ground running. The schedule should include a balance of time with others, down time, and time on their own to read orientation materials or complete other orientation-related tasks. Consider including some or all of the following:
 - Designated time for the new employee to attend Welcome Day orientation if they are a benefits-eligible staff member working on our Seattle campus. Faculty on the Seattle campus and employees with the medical centers, UW Bothell and UW Tacoma should attend the orientations hosted by their organizations; those employees may attend Welcome Day in its entirety or simply attend the benefits portion (registration is still required).
 - Designated time for the new employee to review and sign up for benefits, if eligible.
 - One-on-one or small group meetings with other team members. During these meetings, team members might describe their work and how it integrates with work of the new team member.
 - One-on-one meetings with you to discuss job description, performance expectations, appropriate attire, time and leave, etc.
 - Time alone at their workstation so they can digest all the new information and make notes about what they've learned in meetings.
 - Tour of campus or larger work environment.

ONBOARDING MISTAKES TO AVOID

► You want your new employee to feel comfortable and be excited about their new job. So why is it that organizations often act in ways that create the opposite result? Here are the top ways to guarantee your new employee will start off on the wrong foot.

AVOID THESE:

- Don't assign a work area. (Let them sit in a hall or share a cube.)
- Schedule the new employee to start work while their supervisor is on vacation.
- Leave the new employee standing in the company reception area for a half-hour while reception staff try to figure out what to do with them.
- Abandon the new employee at their work station to manage on their own while co-workers pair up and head out to lunch.
- Provide an hour in a noisy lobby for the new employee to read and sign-off on a 100-page Employee Handbook.
- Show the new employee their office and don't introduce them to co-workers or assign them a mentor.
- Assign the new employee to a staff person who has a major, career-impacting deadline in three days.
- Give the employee "busy work" that has nothing to do with their core job description, because you are having a busy week.
