Academic and Organizational Success for Middle and High School Students

The UW Autism Center is excited to present a workshop for parents & school personnel of middle and high school-aged individuals (13-18 years old) with Autism Spectrum Disorders.

Saturday, September 30, 2017

In this workshop, participants will learn strategies to help middle and high school students with Autism achieve academic and organizational success. In addition to academic and organizational strategies, participants will learn how to create and implement age appropriate systems of reinforcement to motivate and encourage independence! Topics discussed include:

- Why organization is difficult for people with ASD
- How to support middle and high school students to achieve academic and organizational success
- How to implement systems of reinforcement that are age appropriate and increase motivation and independence
