

Seeing the Big Picture: Strengths-Based Autism Assessment Across the Lifespan

Traditional assessments focus too heavily on deficits. In this workshop, you will learn strategies for assessing for strengths associated with autism and making practical recommendations for how to use them. We will explore recent research and hear personal examples from autistic people. You will gain practical tools that you can use remotely or in person. You will also be part of important conversations about how to use a neurodiversity-affirming and research-based approach.
