

Reframing Challenging Behaviors

The way we think about challenging behavior matters. A "stubborn" or "defiant" child inspires very different approaches than an "overwhelmed" or "discouraged" child. Students with disruptive behavior are often sorely in need of guidance, and yet few of these students trust adults to provide that guidance. This webinar teaches you how to help students in ways that feel helpful to them, increasing their motivation and ability to cooperate.

Course Objectives:

- Identify unmet needs contributing to disruptive behavior
- Modify communication to increase students' trust
- Implement strategies that increase students' willingness and ability to cooperate with adult expectations

Who should attend: Teachers and paraprofessionals working with individuals from preschool through young adulthood

Content level: Intermediate

Clock Hours: This event, when attended in its entirety, offers 3 WA state approved clock hours.

Instructor: Dr. Lucas Harrington, Psy.D.
